FENGTIEN AND CHIHLI MEET IN FIGHT AT HANHAUKUAN

Heavy Fire Exchanged By Opposing Forces

OMB LUANCHOW

Airplanes Stage Raid But Casualties Are Minor

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, September 24.—Heavy firing was exchanged yesterday morning between the Chihli and Fengtien troops on the Shanhaikuan front as a result of reconnaissance in force by the Fengtien troops. In the afternoon, a number of Fengtien airplanes appeared over Luanchow and dropped more than 20 bombs, causing very little damage. Only three or four persons were killed and wounded.

(Reuters Pacific Service)

Tientsin, September 25.—An Hsien was bombed yesterday by Marshal Chang so lin. An attempt to blow up the Lan River bridge failed. Shanhaikuan experienced the usual daily bombing, fifty pound missiles being used.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Sept. 24.—A lull has at last come today in the transportation by rail of the Chihli troops, proceeding to fighting fronts. The railway station here presents an uneasy calmness after the activities of the past few days. Station clerks announce that tickets will be sold each morning at Tangshan.

The conditions existing east of Tientsin are that Shanhaikuan is the advance line of the Chihli troops, which are commanding the strategic position from the jag of the Great Wall to a point about one mile distant outside Shanhaikuan in the sea-shore. Besides, all the hills and strongholds to the west of Shanhaikuan are being well guarded by detachments of the Chihli troops.

By order of the General Headquarters of the Government troops, General Beng Shou-shin, commander of the 15th Division, a few days ago removed to Ching-tiao one artillery battalion and the infantry brigade which had been stationed near the foremost line. All the important places along the railway are being guarded by the troops of the 26th Division.

SOVIET-MUKDEN PACT IS SIGNED, CHINESE ASSERT

Favorable Terms Granted On Chinese Eastern Railway

(Eastern News Agency)

Mukden, September 24.—Chinese circles here confirm the report that an agreement was duly signed on the 22nd instant between Marshal Chang Tso-lin and a Soviet delegate on the Chinese Eastern Railway question. Although the substance of the agreement is being kept secret, it is reported in well-informed quarters that the said agreement is much more favorable to Fengtien than the agreement reached in Peking between the Chinese and Soviet representatives.

Tientsin Is Placed Under Martial Law

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, September 24.—Martial law has been officially proclaimed here as previously expected. General Li Yung-tien, Pacification Commissioner of Tientsin, and General Li Ching-jung, chief of the general staff of the tuchen's office are appointed commander and vice commander, respectively, under martial law.

Hangchow Railway Bridges Not Smashed By Spies, But By Nervous Sunkiang Chief

Same Soldier Dismantled Another Bridge West Of Sunkiang Yesterday; Pontoon Builders Sent To Huangtu Sector

BY TALBOT PATRICK

Those two bridge blowings near Kashing a couple of days ago are not to be credited to the work of Kiangsu spies but to the extreme nervousness of one Chekiang military commander.

That is the information which finally percolated yesterday beyond the headquarters of the commander in mention at Sunkiang and reached Shanghai. Further nervousness of the same soldier was also declared to have caused the taking up of ties and rails yesterday on a bridge about five miles the other side of Sunkiang.

When the commander in question decided to have the bridges smashed, the report goes, he ordered a freight car loaded with enough explosive to sink the Shanghai Bund. An engine was attached and the leader is said to have taken charge personally as the dangerous mission started down the line. A fine lot of the explosive was placed on one bridge and set off.

About that time, someone reminded the commander that a big troops train of Chekiang men from the Ishing front was approaching from the direction of Hangchow and was only a few miles the other side of Kashing. There was some delay before making the other big bang, but the local military ruler continued on his course undeterred by the hesitant objections of members of his staff.

NO CAR RIDES NOW

And the men from the troop train were sent the rest of the way to Shanghai by boat.

Yesterday, a fresh fit of nervousness attacked the military gentleman of Sunkiang. This time he took the milder method of ordering railwaymen to take up the rails and ties of a bridge nearer his headquarters. When they demurred, he offered them a choice of doing as he said or seeing the bridge blown down by explosive. They obeyed his first orders.

No repair work is yet reported to have started on either of the two big bridges first damaged, although, as I previously mentioned, temporary structures could be put in within a day or so. It is believed that the work cannot be started until the commander with the anti-bridge complex has a change of mind or a rest from the wearing responsibilities of his position.

Beside a concentration of junk and smaller boats brought back from the Ishing communication lines, a number of steel pontoons have made their appearance at Shanghai. For several days boats covered over so that their contents do not show and guarded by soldiers and military police have been going up Soochow Creek.

Yesterday evening 500 engineers of Chen Loh-san's 4th Mixed Division went up to the Huangtu section from down the other railway line. It was said they were to be used in making pontoon bridges to facilitate troop movements in a possible advance.

The Nanking troops are known to be using empty oil cans in making pontoons. The holes are plugged and the cans joined in pairs by small planks. To each pair a short rope is attached. To carry this load is an easy matter and a line of bearers can dump them in quick succession in a creek or canal and join them by the ropes.

The first large scale use of convicts for coolies by the Shanghai-Chekiang forces was reported yesterday, after two big groups had been sent up to the front. Eighty men from the Dau Woo Ching prison for long term offenders, located a little beyond Lunghua, went up and were soon followed by a hundred men from the Shanghai city jail. The Chapel coddle clearing house yesterday was swelled by more than a hundred men from Nantao, who were taken to Chapel by boat.

Four more Citroen cars carrying machine guns went up to Nanzhang yesterday, three being armed and the fourth merely a canvas with a mount for the gun. The guns were said to be for possible anti-aircraft use. At the same time a carload of cases of rifle ammunition went up. Earlier in the day half a hundred cases of field gun ammunition and about seventy of rifle ammunition had been sent to Nanzhang and more than a score of field gun ammunition to Liuhio. It is believed that the boats recently going up Soochow Creek carried ammunition for the line between Huangtu village and Chingpu.

A restricted train service ran yesterday on the Hangchow line to Sunkiang. It was not believed the trains carried any presents or explosive from Generals Lu and Ho to the Sunkiang commander to make up the depletions in his stores due to his bridge blowing hobby.

Diplomatic Corps Holds Peking Responsible For Damages From Air Raids

(Reuters Pacific Service)

Peking, September 25.—After a meeting of the Diplomatic Corps, which did not however include M. Karakhan, the Soviet Plenipotentiary, the following memorandum was sent to the Walchiaou and Marshal Chang Tso-lin this afternoon by M. Oudenijk, the Netherlands Minister:

"The outbreak of hostilities in China makes it probable that commanders of the various military forces will make extensive use of aircraft in the conduct of their campaigns. The Heads of the Legations in Peking, although resolved not to interfere in any way in this regrettable conflict, nevertheless they deem it necessary to point out to Your Excellency that they view with the gravest concern the use of this weapon against other objectives than military forces in the field, fortified places or naval units.

"Dropping bombs from aeroplanes on undefended towns is not only an act of wanton destruction but a crime against the peaceful population. It is a well-known fact that accuracy in dropping bombs is practically unattainable, and that any attempt to hit a given building must inevitably involve the greatest risk to the buildings and residents in the immediate neighborhood of the objective.

In the City of Peking not only are situated the Legations of friendly Powers, but its walls enclose numerous palaces, temples and other historical buildings, which are rightly considered monuments of great value in the history of civilization of mankind. The dropping of bombs from aeroplanes on towns and villages can have no possible military value, but can only cause untold misery and suffering to numbers of inoffensive non-combatants, and cause the destruction of priceless monuments, and, moreover, the lives and properties of foreign nationals, who are taking no part whatsoever in the actual conflict, and intend to maintain an absolutely neutral attitude in this domestic quarrel, will be put to grave and constant danger.

"For these reasons the Heads of the Legations feel it their duty to make this appeal to Your Excellency, and whilst giving expression to their satisfaction that the intention was made known to afford full protection to the lives and properties of foreigners, they trust that no air attacks will be made endangering the lives of their nationals. Should, however, foreign lives be lost, or property destroyed, as a result of attack by aeroplanes on the Capital or on any Treaty Port, they would feel obliged to hold the authority who ordered the attack strictly responsible therefor."

BERLIN DRAFTS PROPOSALS FOR LEAGUE ENTRY

Memorandum Will Give Wishes And Conditions Of Germany

(Reuters Service)

Berlin, Sept. 24.—The Foreign Office is drawing up a memorandum in which Germany's wishes and conditions for entry into the League of Nations will be laid down.

The memorandum will ask whether a permanent seat on the Council will be guaranteed and will expressly declare that Germany's entry will in no way denote re-affirmation of war guilt. It will seek information as regards the obligations undertaken by becoming a member, especially with reference to the question of transportation of foreign troops through Germany for the assistance of a neighboring State attacked by a third nation.

Germany argues that such transportation would involve a breach of neutrality, especially in regard to Russia, which might lead to the latter retaliating against a defenceless Germany.

The memorandum will also deal with the occupation of the Ruhr and the question of colonial mandates.

Geneva, Sept. 24.—The Judicial Committee has taken cognizance of the articles of the protocol of obligatory arbitration re definition of aggressor. The text which had been prepared by M. The condition of M. Maurice Sarraut's health, which has been very serious for the past two days, slightly improved this morning.

BRITISH-GERMAN NEGOTIATIONS AT BERLIN STALLED

Delegates Fail To Agree On Basis For Commercial Treaty

(Reuters Service)

Berlin, Sept. 24.—Reuters learns that the negotiations which have been proceeding between British and German officials for the past three days with a view to the drafting of a commercial agreement have broken down in consequence of the inability of the negotiators to discover a common basis of agreement.

Strict secrecy has been maintained by both sides but the reason for the breakdown is stated to be mainly the refusal of the Germans to make concessions respecting the taxation of British goods exported to Germany; which will be subjected to practically prohibitive duties under the new German tariff now in course of preparation.

Mr. Henry Fountain, the Principal Assistant Sec. of the Board of Trade, who was the British negotiator, will return to London tomorrow. Lord d'Abernon, the Ambassador, will also leave for home tomorrow after seeing Dr. Stresemann, the Foreign Minister.

They will be in Shanghai until Saturday when they depart for Japan and after a few weeks there will proceed to the United States.

Foreign Property Left Unmolested As Chekiang Troops Loot In Huchow

(China Press Correspondence)

Huchow, Chekiang, Sept. 21.—Huchow was looted yesterday by the soldiers of General Chen Yao-san and General Wang Ping, former military governor of Huchow and Kashing. These troops belonged to the 3rd and 4th divisions of the Chekiang army and had been stationed in the war zone at Changshing and Szean.

Thursday night the officers of the troops deserted their men, and returned to Huchow, bringing a small part of their armies on the way to Kashing, their idea being to go to Shanghai and join General Lu Yung-hsiang in his attack against Kiangsu. When their troops arrived outside the south gate of the city, they were kept well in hand while General Chen negotiated with the Huchow Chamber of Commerce for an unreasonably high loan. It is said that the representatives of the two parties sat for a long while in each other's presence drinking tea and waiting for the other to make some kind of an offer. After the usual dickering the Chamber of Commerce "loaned" General Chen $50,000 to help get his 5,000 soldiers to Kashing. These troops passed on without any trouble.

Early Saturday morning other groups of soldiers belonging to General Chen began to arrive, having been delayed on their journey by a lack of boats. As they heard that the other troops had been bought off with a large sum of money, they demanded immediately a large sum for themselves. It was not at once forthcoming, so they began to raid the city. Gunshots could be heard as early as three of four o'clock in certain parts of the city. Then as daylight began to come they became more numerous. Men could be seen in various places running along the tops of buildings in a crouching position. Excited and hushed voices could be heard in the streets as people were running past. The firing seemed to center mostly in the heart of the city along and near the principal business street. As the firing increased bullets could be heard whizzing by so near that one would instinctively dodge.

SHOPS ARE LOOTED

On the streets could be seen men running here and there, dodging into doorways, running into side alleys, peeping gingerly from the cracks of their doors. Then as a group of soldiers would come into view with rifles or pistols lowered and cocked, the whole street would clear before them in

CHEKIANG PLANES BOMB TAICHANG AND QUINSAN; LULL ON FRONT UNBROKEN

Big Kiangsu Army Gathered At Quinsan, Scouting Airmen Report; Lunghua Anticipates Massive Drive From Kiangsu Soon; Fukien Vanguard's Enter Hangchow Today

The lull along the Tsingpu-Huangtu-Kating-Liuho front remained unbroken yesterday. Save for occasional rifle firing and sniping, there was no serious clash.

Chekiang airplanes bombed Taichang and Quinsan with some effect. The airmen reported that an immense Kiangsu army has been gathered at Quinsan and a massive drive against Huangtu and Tsingpu is momentarily expected, according to the Lunghua headquarters.

Four bombing and scouting machines took off at the Lunghua aviation field at 10.38 o'clock yesterday. Two of these flew to Taichang and deposited four five-pounders in the Kiangsu camp. The other two went to Quinsan and left five among the Kiangsu garrison. Much damage was done, according to the pilots. They spotted two Kiangsu planes on their way but neither side attempted to bag the other. The Chekiang airmen returned at 11.30 o'clock.

Kiangsu forces assaulted

Liuhio at 7 o'clock on Wednesday. At the same time the troops at Lutang made a rush for Lootien. Both attempts were frustrated after some fighting which ended at 9.40 p.m. Liuhio was quiet all day yesterday.

Tsingpu was bombarded with artillery fire yesterday morning at 3 o'clock. However, only desultory shots were heard in the afternoon. A Nanzhang long distance telephone message to Lunghua headquarters reports an engagement between Kiangsu and Chekiang troops at Huangtu on Wednesday night when the Nanking men attempted to capture Malu. Fighting continued only for less than three hours when the attackers were repelled.

A telegram from Hangchow received at Lunghua states that the vanguards of Sun Chuan-fang under the command of Meng Chao-yu are expected to enter the Chekiang capital today. This is regarded by Lunghua as the last military message from Hangchow, which also indicates that the Acting Governor, Hsia Chao, was ready to welcome the new Tuli and his following, having ordered that all military equipments and supplies be left in their original position till the arrival of General Sun. A small section of the local military is said to be opposed to the entry of the Fukien troops.

A report was current yesterday morning that General Lu Yung-hsiang was to start a drive yesterday morning. It is understood, however, that as a result of a conference between Lu and General Chwang Tsing, it was decided to postpone the offensive until the bulk of General Chen Yao-shan's fourth division is sent to this sector.

Meanwhile anti-Chihli movements are being hatched in various places in Chekiang despite the departure of General Lu. It is reliably reported. Ex-Governors Chu Yin-kwan and Chiang Tseng-kwei, both Chekiang men themselves, are organizing a Chekiang Self-Defence Army ostensibly to oppose the penetration of Chihli influence into their province. They will have their headquarters in Ningpo where all anti-Chihli Chekiang forces are being concentrated. Chu and Chiang are at present both in Shanghai, consulting the Chekiang gentry.

A regiment of Pan Kuo-kan's forces has arrived in Ningpo. In view of Pan's loyalty to General Lu, it is possible that the Anti-Chihli forces will build their army with Pan's division as the nucleus.

(Reuters Pacific Service)
Mukden, Sept. 24.—There is no news today of serious fighting. Small skirmishes are reported to have taken place at Kailu, in which the Fengtien troops claim to have been successful. They also claim that the Sixth Fengtien Army is pursuing the enemy.

A bulletin received today from the Second Army reports: "Chihli troops consisting of a Liu Brigade, the Thirteenth Jehol Division, the Jehol Mixed Brigade, the Mountain Patrolling Contingent and the Police Vanguard, altogether 8,000 to 9,000 men strong, were badly defeated by the Fengtien troops

ARTILLERY HEAD AT LIUHO KILLED BY STRAY BULLET

"Situation Well In Hand On All Fronts", Says Lunghua

BY D. J. LEWIS

Lootien, Sept. 25, 8.30 p.m.—Col. Chang Yi-cheng, commanding the Liuhio sector was interviewed at 7.30 tonight by the China Press correspondent at Lootien having just arrived from a military conference at the Lunghua Arsenal with General Ho Feng-ling. Col. Chang who left Lootien at 6.30 p.m. stated that the usual light fighting occurred last night. He regretted very much to report the death of a crack artillery officer of the 10th Division, Lieut. Liu, who was shot today by a stray rifle bullet while in charge of his battery at Zu Kio Chiao. Lieut. Liu's body was brought to Shanghai today at 2 p.m. Arrangements are being made to ship the body to Shanghai for burial.

Col. Chang stated that Col. Chen Jih-ching in charge of the 3rd regiment of the 24th Mixed Brigade is now actively engaged with him in defending the Liuhio sector. No change of any importance has taken place in the Chekiang line. They still remain in complete control of the town, but the road from Zu Kio Chiao to Liuhio is being constantly swept with artillery and rifle fire. Although several units of the Kiangsu fleet remain off Liuhio they have not caused any anxiety for the past few days. The road is now being effectively patrolled by armed military guards placed at intervals of forty yards and a strict examination is made at frequent intervals of all traffic. The Colonel was informed by telephone that the usual night fighting had again started at 7 p.m. today. The firing could be plainly heard at Lootien.

No reports were received of any fighting in the vicinity of Kading this evening. Judge Loh, principal secretary to General Ho Feng-ling stated this evening that he had no news whatever to communicate relative to the military situation other than that latest reports from the front indicate that the situation is well in hand along the entire front.

He mentioned that since the Independent Navy has been in

WOMAN'S CORPS AT NANKING TO HELP WOUNDED

Wives Of Military Officials Organize To Relieve Suffering

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanking, September 23.—Realizing the urgent need of the wounded soldiers a group of benevolent ladies at Nanking including Madam Chi (wife of Marshal Chi), Madam Lu (mother-in-law of the Marshal), Madam Hau (daughter-in-law of the Civil Governor), Madam Wen (wife of the Commissioner for Foreign Affairs at Nanking), Madam Liu (mother of the Nanking Chief of Staff), Madam Wang (mother of the local Police Commissioner), Madam Chang (mother of the Industry Commissioner), and Madam Wen (mother of the former Finance Commissioner for Kiangsu) have taken the lead in organizing a Women's Corps for Soldiers' Relief.

More than $6,000 has been raised since the organization came into existence. Among the promoters are other ladies from the families of the local military and civil authorities. They expect to raise $10,000 for the campaign. There is no doubt that with their humane efforts they can easily accomplish their aim in a short time.

Besides buying milk, cigarettes, etc. for the nourishment and comfort of the wounded, the corps has decided to give a suit of new clothes to each of those seriously wounded. To those killed they supply coffins and attend to the necessary burial ceremonies. In addition to this they will visit the wounded in the various hospitals in person and it is certain that their work will be highly appreciated.

Chinese Abandon Ammunition; Elude Police In Chase

Two Chinese, trapped while they were trying to smuggle munitions ashore in the Settlement, dropped 240 rounds of .38 caliber ammunition in an alleyway in the Wayside district and escaped.

The men were first noticed by Special Police Watchmen 148 and 246 as they were leaving the Whangpoo Wharf. The watchmen suspected them of an attempt to smuggle arms and called upon them to halt. Instead, the men ran down an alleyway, one of them dropping a package as he ran, and ended the watchmen and a Chinese constable who had joined the chase.

The package was picked up and was found to contain the ammunition.

MRS. ALICE DOLAN GIVEN DIVORCE ON CRUELTY CHARGE

Court Rejects Application To Keep Details Out Of Press

Mrs. Alice Dolan was granted a divorce from her husband, Mr. J. S. Dolan, by Judge Milton D. Purdy in the United States Court for China yesterday afternoon. Major C. P. Holcomb appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. F. J. Schuhl for the defendant. Mr. Myron Simon of Tientsin testified that the couple were married at his residence in Tientsin in February of last year. The charge was cruelty.

An interesting diversion was provided during the course of the trial when Major Holcomb asked if the Court would request the newspapers not to publish the details of the case, stating that a similar request had been made by his predecessor. Counsel urged that the publication of such cases was not good for the name of the community.

BAN ON PRESS REFUSED

His Honor in refusing to make any such request, remarked that if people wanted to keep their names out of the papers, the best thing for them to do was to keep out of court. He did not want it to appear that he was requesting that anything which took place in his court was a matter of secrecy. He reminded counsel that a request was made to have the case set down for 3 p.m. He could see no reason for that, except that counsel wanted it and so far as he was concerned it was perfectly all right, but if anything took place in court he did not want it considered by the newspapers or anybody else as a sort of Star Chamber proceeding. In giving his decision, his Honor commented on the evidence, which he characterized as unsatisfactory.

There was a general denial to the charges made, but the case was practically one of default. The complainant undoubtedly had suffered a great deal of anguish, pain and trouble in getting along with her husband but he was not entirely satisfied with the evidence which had been put forward.

Mr. Schuhl stated that he knew both the parties to the action intimately and if there had been any chance of bringing the parties together he and Major Holcomb would have been able to do so.

His Honor commented on the fact that the amah's testimony had not entirely corroborated Mrs. Dolan's, in fact the amah's corroboration was very little. He did not want it thought that the Court would grant divorces in the future unless there was good corroborative testimony, and he wanted to feel that when he did grant a divorce there was on the record which was always in Court sufficient to justify his action. From what counsel had said in this case it was clear that these two people could not get along together and in this instance he would grant the divorce on the testimony in the case.

would lead one to believe that the reports of practically all the rolling stock being brought to Shanghai from Hangchow are correct.

An American missionary formerly stationed at Liuhoo expressed his admiration for the brave conduct of Preacher Chang Z. Cha who remained behind and organized relief work.

When the clash of arms shattered the peaceful routine of Liuhoo the local Officials hurriedly gathered their portfolios and sought the quietest and less hazardous parts of the city. They fled, leaving the city to its fate, and the dead to bury its dead.

As roads along the main street began to crash, and the cries of the wounded were mingled with the clash of two armies fighting back and forth for the very streets of the city, then Preacher Chang Z. Cha of the Methodist Church, South, organized thirteen of his members into a local rescue band, whose purpose was "The rescue of the living and the dead." They hurriedly stamped the local church seal down on the Red Cross, and every day and night have been going in and out thru the lines of battle, succoring the living, and carrying out the dead. The soldiers honor this type of bravery, and invite them to talk and eat with them constantly, and hold their church sacred from violation. Besides the wounded brought out of the lines and turned over to the Chinese Red Cross, they are taking care of more than a hundred in the local church.

Seeing their bravery and the faithfulness of their leader, they have made Preacher Chang acting Mayor of the city, acting Police Head, and Head of the Sanitation Department of the City, and also Head of the local Red Cross.

Interviewed in Shanghai where he had come to buy medicine Mr. Chang spoke of the terrible plight of the people in Liuhoo, and the horror of the constant fighting.

Asked as to the risk of his returning and the risk which he was daily taking, he merely said, "We know what the Red Cross means." For his life job of preaching, he gets sixteen dollars per month. Mr. Chang is one of "China's Best Young Men" and when the old guard fled, he "stuck".

Had Preacher Chang lived in Belgium during the World War, they probably would have a monument there for him now.

"Santaro," in the Japan Advertiser, tells a tale about the Military Clothing Depot that would do credit to Sir H. Rider Haggard. After the fire had swept over the place, killing the multitude that had gone there to seek safety, some who had kept alive in a ditch beside the place of death, arose from their shelter, and one of them addressed his fellows to the extent of nearly half a column of small type. It was very eloquent and patriotic—an admirable speech, indeed, but one that could not possibly have been made in such circumstances. However, something of this sort is just as likely to take its place in history as the truth, says the "Japan Chronicle."

A trio of former residents of the Far East will be the main actors in a life romance to be staged in Berkeley, California, when Miss Inga Bergstrom, daughter of the former Swedish Minister to Japan, will become the bride of Professor Schenck, a member of the faculty of Leland Stanford, Jr. University at Palo Alto, California. Professor Schenck is a brother of Mr. Egbert W. Schenck, manager of F. W. Horne and Company, in Tokyo. The ceremony, which is to take place in October, will be performed by the Rev. The Government consignment arrived by motor car, closed carriage and sedan chair, and apparently consisted of wives, concubines and other hangers-on. The retainers, being in a hurry, shout everyone out of their way.

The Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce has appointed three representatives to consult with the Ministry of Finance jointly with a view to save the depreciation of the national bonds. It would be an ignominious thing for the authorities if they fail to remedy the market since Shanghai, despite the fighting in its vicinity, can still find means to raise the bond value as reported in the papers, says the Peking Leader.

The superintendent of Peking police has pointed out to the Government the advisability of prohibiting foreigners from using the walls of Peking to make surveys, according to the Chinese press. It is not stated to what definite acts of foreigners objection is taken, but it is apparently felt that the walls have assumed a strategic value which must not be marred.

If the circumstances allow them, the journey will be extended as far as Shanghai via Tsingtao.

Two nations, Great Britain and America, have advised the Chinese Government that they cannot accept as whole the notification that foreigners must not travel in the provinces of Kiangsu, Chekiang, Anhwei and Kiangsi. According to the treaties, the Government must protect foreign nationals in the interior, and while it is realized that there is danger in the war zone, nevertheless the two Powers do not wish to concede to such a widespread prohibition on foreign travel and the

The foreigners who stayed in Peltaiho until the last minute paid heavily in discomfort. The train which left Peltaiho at 10 o'clock Sunday night was made up of two sections, the first getting through to Peking in fairly reasonable time. The second section, however, got mixed up in the troop movement and did not arrive Peking until Tuesday morning, taking close to 35 hours en route.

Canion Battles Garcia To A Draw In Twelve Rounds Of Splendid Fighting Here

Keenan Draws Again With Forral; De Dios Beats Suzara In Good Contest; Xavier Licks Hertzberg

In twelve rounds of splendid fighting at the Cariton last night Rufe Canion battled Leonardo Garcia to a draw decision, and proved himself as entitled to go up against the best boys Shanghai has to offer. There was not much doubt about it before, but whatever there was Rufe dispelled last night, when he stood up and battled the bigger and heavier boy to a standstill round after round, knocking him down in the third and swapping punches in the last round in a slugging contest which had both boys groggy on their feet. The only reason neither boy was knocked out in the final inning was because each of them was too far gone to land a kayo wallop.

It was not all slugging, though, and it was not all Rufe. Some of the rounds it was all Garcia. Leonardo had three pounds advantage over Rufe, they weighing in at 126 and 123 pounds respectively, but Canion's punches registered a good many more horse-power than most of Leonardo's, though the latter boy's were more frequent.

At the start, of course, the boys sparred around, feeling each other out. In the second they started mixing. Garcia landed a couple of punches, but without doing much damage.

In the third, after a bit of sparring, Canion landed a couple of nice ones, and soon after planted a lovely right on Garcia's jaw which knocked the other off his feet. Garcia was more careful after this, and all his quickness and cleverness were utilized to the utmost. In the fourth came the first infighting, when both landed some good body blows. There was some open fighting, and Garcia landed twice, but Rufe came back with some punches which kept Leonardo backing up and on the defensive. In the fifth, after some sparring, Garcia plunged in and landed a couple of stiff punches, and after a few seconds repeated. Canion landed once in payment, but Garcia's side-stepping and ducking enabled him to avoid Rufe's vicious wallops.

Rufe had rather the best of the early rounds, but the sixth round was the first which went decisively to anyone, and it was Garcia's. The two mixed, and Garcia landed some stiff punches to which Rufe failed to respond successfully. In the infighting both landed, but when they separated again Garcia planted three jabs in succession, and when they started swapping punches landed one lovely wallop which must have staggered Canion, but Rufe held on.

Rufe started the seventh with the obvious intention of landing a kayo, but did not get very far with it. Garcia ducking and side-stepping his wicked swings. Canion landed a couple of punches, but the round was pretty even. In the eighth they alternately sparred and mixed, and both drew blood. Canion landing a stiff left to Garcia's nose which started the claret, and Leonardo getting through with a vicious wallop which cut open Rufe's lip.

In the ninth Canion landed a few that staggered Garcia and gave expectations of a kayo. He repeated this twice, with right swings and vicious back-handers which were hard to take, but Garcia kept on, and once came back with a couple of his own. This was Canion's round, but Garcia came back in the next, landing a lovely right swing early in the round, and coming in later with a vicious left that left a bad cut over Rufe's eye. The eleventh was also mostly Garcia, who landed several good punches. Rufe came back from time to time with some nice wallops, but Garcia landed more frequently, and with a fair amount of steam.

The twelfth round was a terrific battle. Both went into the ring with the obvious intention of landing kayos, and almost succeeded. Garcia landed some excellent wallops, Rufe responding more vigorously if less frequently. They stood up and swapped punches which knocked both of them half silly, and if Benny Hertzberg had jumped in he probably could have kayoed either of them at the finish, when they were both wobbly on their feet. A draw decision was given, which seemed to be the best possible under the circumstances, and met with general approval. It was a splendid scrap.

KEENAN AND FORRAL

In the semi-final Syd Keenan and Benny Forral met again, going eight rounds of good fighting to a draw. Syd had a shade on points, but Forral's aggressiveness earned him the even decision. The boys weighed in even—at 120 pounds—and started off hot and heavy in the first round, when they clinched and showed some good infighting. This was repeated in the second, and both landed some body punches which hurt.

Beginning with the third, however, there was more open fighting and in the latter part of the fourth Keenan landed some nasty ones which staggered Benny a bit, but the Filipino boy held on. In the fifth Syd repeated, and things looked bad for Forral for a bit. In the sixth, however, after Keenan landed a couple of good body blows the two stood up and swapped some good punches. Forral showing up well again.

In the seventh they again mixed it up, the fighting being pretty even, and in the eighth, after a little sparring at they start, they got down to punch-swapping, both giving and taking pretty evenly. The fight inclined in general more to Keenan than Forral, but the draw decision given—Benny fully deserved by his aggressiveness and readiness to fight.

In the second event De Dios got the decision over Suzara in eight rounds of good fast fighting. Faustino showed all his usual speed, and shaded the other boy throughout the scrap. Suzara showed up well, and is a boy with class. De Dios is faster, but the other boy put up a very creditable little.

De Dios had the best of the fighting from the start, in fact Suzara came back from time to time with some good punches, but Faustino kept out of the way of anything dangerous. He started the claret from Suzara's nose once, and kept it flowing till the finish, but failed to land anything which looked like a kayo. In the final round Suzara tried some football tactics, and once practically forced Faustino down to his knees.

In general, Suzara is a good lad, but he lacks the speed and cleverness of De Dios, and Faustino was fully entitled to the decision.

XAVIER AND HERTZBERG

In the curtain-raiser Charlie Xavier beat Hansie Hertzberg in four rounds. The Hertzberg lad came into the ring some pounds heavier than Charlie, but was outwitted all through. Charlie knocked him all over the ring in the first round, almost landing a kayo, but Hansie did better work in the second and thereafter, and though he got the worst of it stood up pretty well.

Cotton Deputation Demands Equal Right On German Market

(Reuter's Service)
London, Sept. 24.—An influential deputation representative of Lancashire cotton interests waited on the Prime Minister today in connection with the negotiation of an Anglo-German commercial treaty.

The deputation demanded that Britain should obtain equal treatment with other nations on German markets. Several spokesmen singled out the advantages already conferred on France, notably Alsace, exports from which country to Germany were not taxed.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald promised that the industry would be kept informed and consulted in the course of the negotiations.

LENINGRAD IS FLOODED; TIDAL WAVE HITS CITY

Ten-Foot Wave Strikes City Resulting In Collapse Of Many Buildings

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Moscow, Sept. 25.—A tidal wave has flooded Leningrad, submerging the city with ten feet of water. This is the worst flood in a century. Many residences and factories were damaged and demolished. Urgent appeals have been received here for relief; and food and relief corps have been rushed to the city.

Later reports show that complete order is being maintained; the water has receded and conditions are improving.

An all-day storm and a raging sea swept the water up the Neva, which burst the banks, letting the ten-foot wave into the city, and taking the inhabitants by surprise. Trees were uprooted. Horses and wagons were upset and their occupants were rescued with considerable difficulty.

First aid relief work has been organized by the Communist Trade Unions.

The news agency adds that the Kurultai Congress at Bokhara has decided to become a member of the Soviet and has approved the proposed readjustment by which the Uzbeks inhabiting the Bokhara will be merged into the newly-constituted Uzbekistan and the Turcomans into Turkmenistan.

Seaman Freed On Assault Charge

Jack Shirley, a seaman, charged before Judge Purdy in the U. S. Court for China yesterday afternoon with assaulting a Chinese constable was dismissed. The statement made by the defendant was that while returning to his ship a coolie snatched a hat which he was carrying. Defendant gave chase and in doing so knocked down a small boy, whereupon a crowd ran after him. The constable also came up and arrested him and as he felt he had done nothing wrong he pushed him off. He denied assaulting the man. The district attorney prosecuted, and Mr. J. R. Brown defended.

Risks Children Run

In The Far East
In China and the tropical East babies and young children are subject to much greater health risks than are those who live in America or Europe, for reasons associated with climatic conditions and environment. Every thoughtful parent knows this, and should take precautions accordingly.

One of the best safeguards for the health of your little ones is to be found in Baby's Own Tablets, a medicine especially prepared for the use of children, and guaranteed absolutely white, safe and safe for even the youngest infant. The following testimony to their merits comes from Mr. D. L. M. Haniff, of Alameda, Whiteaway Island & Co., Ipoh, F. M. S., who writes: "My little son was subject to children's complaints such as fever, stomach-ache, grippe, etc. I sought medical advice but all to no purpose. Then I tried Baby's Own Tablets and they made a wonderful change. My boy has no complaints now, has an excellent appetite, and is the very likeness of health."

The first effect of Baby's Own Tablets is to gently move the bowels. Then they cool feverishness, relieve indigestion, colic, cramp, or colds, check diarrhoea, allay teething pains, expel worms, quiet the nerves, promote restful, health-giving sleep. Chemists sell them, also post free, 60 cents the trial from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

JAPANESE WILL ACT AS ADVISOR TO MARSHAL WU

General Banzai Denies That He Will Assist In War, However

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Sept. 24.—In compliance with Marshal Wu Pei-fu's request, Lieutenant-General Banzai, Japanese military advisor to the Presidential Office, is reported to have agreed to become an advisor to Marshal Wu in addition to his present post.

In this connection, General Banzai states in part:

"The fact that I have become an advisor to Marshal Wu Pei-fu may, perhaps, give rise to the conjecture that I have something to do with the present Chihli-Pengtien war, but in reality, I have no idea whatever of interfering in the internal disturbances in China."

"I have complied with Marshal Wu's request, simply because, as he proposes, he is desirous of hearing my views in order to meet possible occasions that may arise in connection with the Manchurian question at the conclusion of the war."

"I feel quite satisfied, therefore, if my service as an advisor to Marshal Wu should contribute in any way towards the furtherance of the friendly relations of China and Japan, I am not yet in a position to foretell what will be the outcome of the present war between Chihli and Fengtien."

DISORDERS IN ARMY CAMP IN HOLLAND MINOR

Some Friction Between Troops And Police But Nothing Of Importance

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 24.—In view of the persistence of sensational reports of a mutiny of Dutch troops engaged in autumn exercises in South Holland, Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent states that it does not appear that anything of importance occurred.

There were some cases of drunkenness and also of discontent owing to the inadequate camping arrangements. Many men suffered from rain pouring into their tents but, as a result of complaints, the men were quartered in houses. There was no mutiny but there was some friction at Ede Camp at Gelderland as a reprisal for alleged high-handed action by the military police in arresting men for trifling offences in regard to dress, etc. A number of the men beat a military policeman and smashed up the furniture of a police hutment, but a couple of the ringleaders were arrested and order was restored. The military police were reprimanded.

French Sailors Are Given Sentences In Arms Smuggling Case

Raymond Beugnot and Rene Beugnot, two members of the crew of the Messageries Maritimes liner Andre Lebon, have been found guilty by a court martial aboard the French Cruiser Jules Ferry on charges of smuggling arms. Sentences of three months imprisonment and a fine of 16 francs and a fine of 100 francs were imposed by the court.

The men were arrested by police of the International Settlement on September 6th when they attempted to bring ashore nine automatic pistols and 892 rounds of ammunition.

INDIA ASSEMBLY VOTES ABOLITION OF COTTON DUTY

Indian Members Brand Excise Tax As Vicious; Blame Lancashire

(Reuter's Service)

Simla, Sept. 24.—The Legislative Assembly today, after a long discussion, accepted without a division a resolution in favor of the abolition of the cotton excise duty.

Indian members argued that the duty was vicious and had been imposed by the influence of Lancashire.

Mr. Charles Innes, in a powerful speech, gave striking figures proving the prosperity of the cotton industry and maintained that no case had been proved for protection. He held that the abolition of the duty would place one and a half crores of rupees in the pockets of mill-owners and cause a loss to the Government. If the duty was removed he reserved the right to refer to the Tariff Board the question whether, in the interest of the consumer, the import duty on piece-goods should be lowered.

Brink Of Niagara Moves Back Two Feet Each Year

At last a definite scheme to check the self-destruction of Niagara Falls is under consideration. If it is put through, it will diminish, if not entirely stop, the relentless creeping of the falls toward the mouth of Lake Erie.

There is an old catch question as to the direction in which Niagara Falls are moving. The answer is, upstream. The water of the stream runs down, of course, like other waters, but in doing so, it digs away the rocky shelf over which it plunges. The top layer of that shelf is a deposit of lime, stone, hard and resistant, about eighty feet thick. Underneath it lie layers of other rock, chiefly soft shale. As this is ground away at the bottom of the cliff, the hard top layer loses its support, and breaks down in huge fragments. Swept about in the deep pool below, these serve as tools to eat the bottom shale away.

The net result is that the rim of the Falls moves back at an average speed of more than two feet a year, for the Horseshoe Falls. The American Falls, which carry a shallower stream of water, recede less than one-third as fast. The Horseshoe itself gnaws its support from under it most rapidly in midstream, where the current runs fastest and deepest. That is why it has taken on the horseshoe form.

A movement of somewhat over two feet a year is fast work as motion is reckoned in geology. It means that George Washington, looking at the Horseshoe Falls, would have seen them 300 feet or so closer to the spot where the Suspension Bridge now spans the gorge. To go back a bit further, Alexander the Great, had his travels brought him to this part of the world, would have found the Falls tumbling over a ledge a trifle downstream from the bridge site. One of the earlier Pharaohs would have beheld it at perhaps its most awesome stage, crashing down directly into the rapids above the Whirlpool.

Measured by man's standards of forward vision, the upward creep of the falls does not threaten anything catastrophic within a time near enough to matter. At a mile every 2,500 years, they would not reach the outlet of Lake Erie for some 50,000 years, by which time the dwellers on the Great Lakes would surely have had ample warning. Indeed, the action of other causes renders it exceedingly unlikely that the falls will ever complete their journey up the Niagara River. The upward tilting of the Great Lake area, which, according to observations, is said to raise the water level at Chicago nine or ten inches a century, will begin sending Great Lake water down to the Mississippi without need of any canal in about a thousand years, and will draw all the waters of the lakes above Niagara long before the falls can recede to Lake Erie.

Even this much less remote inconvenience is too distant to disturb the directors of hydroelectric companies utilizing the falls. It may have some part in explaining the complaint of old lake navigators, that the waters in certain parts of the routes they navigate are becoming shallower. Much hostility has been aroused against the Chicago Canal for drawing off water to the detriment of shipping, but part of the blame may rest on the earth itself which has a disconcerting habit of warping.

ECONOMIC HARM IS REMOTE

The economic harm done or likely to be done soon enough to count, by the retreat of the falls, is relatively slight. Within the course of a generation or so it may necessitate the reconstruction of parts of the intakes of the hydroelectric plants. This may happen more easily on the Canadian side than on the American, where the rate of movement is more gradual. But naturally the builders of the power plants allowed for the creep of the falls when they drew up their plans, and need not worry for many years to come.

The real peril to Niagara, speaking in terms of the near future, is an impairment of its looks. The horseshoe contour of the Canadian fall is being marred, according to observers, by the cutting of a great notch about one-fourth of the way from Goat Island to the Canadian shore. The waters are digging away there more rapidly than elsewhere. While it may be true that the average yearly recession of the fall as a whole exceeds two feet, some parts of the shelf yield faster than others. The part where the notch is appearing changes most rapidly of all.

The damage to the rock shelf goes on faster than elsewhere because the water pours over in great volume. The estimated normal depth at the deepest flow on the brink is eighteen feet. This is probably double the average depth along the brink as a whole. The deep main current, however, as in other rapid streams, runs faster than the shallower waters along the edges. Thus the deepest part of the current casts down its waters not only in a thicker mass but at a swifter rate, and the volume is greater on both these accounts. The grinding force of huge rock fragments swept about by the water underneath the notch or "V" now forming undermines the cliff much more industriously than at other points.

SYMMETRY OF FALLS THREATENED

The horseshoe contour of the greater fall, as millions have seen it, will break down into a deeply indented Gothic arch if the action is not checked. The impressiveness of the Horseshoe Fall is largely a matter of its symmetry. The world has other great waterfalls, but none of those comparable to Niagara in volume and in drop have its impressive symmetry. A deep break in the horseshoe line would impair its peculiar distinction.

Goat Island, the precariously perched wedge of rock and woods separating the two main currents of the Niagara above the cataract at least is safe. Eventually, if unchecked, the Canadian fall would cut its way past the island, but the time that this creep of half a mile would require is too long to worry about. The fall is moving along beside the island and not eating into it. But the near view of the fall from the island is likely to undergo an alteration if the notching of the horseshoe is allowed to continue.

A model of measures to check the destruction now going on was exhibited at Niagara recently by the Niagara Falls Power Company. It consisted of a weir, following the design of Colonel W. D. Warren of the United States Army Engineer Corps. This weir, a curving submerged wall, would cut off the excess flow from that part of the river, just above the brink, which runs fastest and deepest. Only a moderate current could pass the wall. The rest of the water that now plunges down destructively without addition to the scenic appearance of the fall would be distributed so as to go over at points less well supplied, or be added to the flow utilized for power generation.

One effect claimed for the scheme is that it would send more water over the American fall, which now carries only one-twentieth of the total. But a like increase, it is said, would result along the less generously watered portions of the Horseshoe Fall as well. There would remain, enough added water to provide an increased allowance for their use. An alternative plan provides, instead of a weir, a set of small artificial islands to be so placed as to obstruct the heaviest current. The possibility of anchoring islands on the smooth rock bottom of the river is greater than it might seem. The Niagara River, being the outlet of a great natural reservoir, is not subject to those violent floods which would be apt to destroy similar artificial structures in a river fed directly by land drainage. The idea of doctoring Niagara may seem presumptuous to those who judge from the impressions that it inspires, but according to the calculations of engineers it presents no obstacles too serious for modern means of construction.

Local Staff Of N.Y.K. Also Defies President

(Eastern News Agency)
Shanghai, September 25.—The internal trouble between the directors and employees of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha has come to assume a more serious aspect than ever. While managers and staffs of almost all the N. Y. K. branches throughout the world have clarified their attitude, manifesting their dissatisfaction with the administration of the present management and at the same time tendering their resignations, the attitude of the staff of the local N. Y. K. Branch has hitherto remained uncertain. However, as a result of the yesterday's meeting, all the Japanese employees, 52 in all, including two sub-managers, with the exception of the manager Mr. M. Ichiki, have definitely decided upon their attitude, issuing the following declaration and tendering resignations en bloc:—

DECLARATION

"The Nippon Yusen Kaisha, which is a big private organ of traffic and trade of 40 years' standing has in the past maintained its brilliant history due to the support given by the Japanese Government, diligent and hard-working employees, as well as the successive able and far-sighted presidents, who have always guided the employees in the right path.

"Nevertheless, since the assumption by Mr. Ito of the presidency of the company, following the death of the late Baron Rempel Kondo, ex-President of the Company, internal troubles have never ceased, most important reasons for which are attributable to the facts that

(1) The assumption by Mr. Ito of the Presidency of the Company has from the beginning been unwarrantable.

(2) He has assiduously worked only for his self-interest, having no regard to the positive improvement of the company's organization.

(3) He has lacked in his ability and moral-repute sufficient to manage the employees both in land-service and on steamers and

(4) He has entirely destroyed the traditional system and personal relations that have existed for the past forty years by organizing his own party in the company.

"In consequence, all the staffs of the company's branches, last winter, once tendered their resignations en bloc, and by so doing, they all anticipated that Mr. Ito, the President, taking the responsibility upon himself, would retire from the post, thereby ridding the company's rotten condition in the bud. Far from taking such steps, Mr. Ito still sticks to his post and is exposing his lack of sincerity more than ever towards the reform of all the systems of the company. In these days when Japan's shipping industry is in a critical position and when it is most imperative for the Government and the people to co-operate together and do their very best for the development and prosperity of the country, the existing state of affairs of the N.Y.K. Company and never afford to remain as it any longer.

"Indeed, we, having had no time to care for personal feelings, dared to demand from Mr. Ito his prompt retirement, thereby setting the minds of all the employees of the Company at rest and thereby making a great contribution towards the rapid progress and development of our country. But unfortunately enough, Mr. Ito has wholly disregarded our inmost feelings. In these circumstances, we have at least carried out our wholesale resignation as we can by no means bear to remain in our offices. We hereby declare to the public the reason why we have come to take this step and sincerely hope that the public will appreciate our views.

"The staff of the N. Y. K. Branch in Shanghai."

Crimes Are Rife In Fochow As Culprits Are Left Unpunished

Fochow, September 20.—Highway robbery and murder are rife in the vicinity of Fochow. Yesterday, two cases were reported just outside the city, and today comes the report that at 7 p.m. yesterday, a case of highway robbery and murder occurred at a village on Nantai Island very near the spot where Mr. and Mrs. Siemsen were attacked and robbed a few weeks ago. And this right under the eyes of the soldiers placed there for the protection of citizens!

The Chinese attacked last evening was relieved of his money, and stabbed eight times. It is feared the wounds will prove fatal. The man who came to his help in answer to his cries was stabbed twice and killed on the spot. Such outrages have been occurring with more and more frequency owing to the fact, no doubt, that of the many cases of such brutal assault not one of the guilty, so far as is known, has even been arrested, to say nothing of being punished.

Silver Price Kept High By Purchases Of Germany

Philadelphia Mint Is Turning Four Million Ounces
Into German Coins

By George W. Missemer

Exporters of produce from China are anxiously scanning the bullion market for signs that the price of silver may come down so that they may be able to compete in the markets of the world against products coming from countries on a gold basis.

A number of causes, however, seem to be combining to keep silver at a rather high price and there do not seem to be any prospects of any material reduction for quite some time to come. One of the principal reasons why silver prices are being kept at a fairly high level is that considerable purchases of the white metal are being made by the countries of Central Europe. Austria started some months ago putting her subsidiary coinage once more on a silver basis and now Germany is taking the same course.

The countries of Central Europe find that the best method by which they can inspire confidence among their own people in the stability of their currency is to issue coins containing silver, which, while it is not so precious a metal as gold, still comes under the classification of "precious."

The German Government last month purchased four million ounces of silver in America, all of which is to be used in the minting of subsidiary coins; and as the capacity of the mints in Germany is not nearly great enough to turn out the coins from this amount of silver within a reasonable time, the greater part of this fairly large amount of silver has been handed over to the mint at Philadelphia, where the stamping presses are now busy minting coins for Germany. The proportion of silver in the new coins is, of course, much less than it was in coins of the same face value before the war.

The populations of Central Europe seem to be silver coin hungry. When the Austrian Government some months back issued their new silver "shilling," it was found that the public hoarded the coins despite the fact that the silver content was very much below the stamped value. As the coins disappeared from circulation almost as soon as they were issued, it seemed at first that the Government's plan of reintroducing a precious metallic currency would prove unsuccessful, but the wise conclusion was eventually come to that if the public liked to absorb and hoard coins whose intrinsic value was considerably below their face value the wisest thing for the Government to do was to keep on turning out the coins, and incidentally pocketing the profit, until the saturation point for hoarding had been reached.

The purchase of four million ounces which the German Government made last month in America is only the first portion of purchases which it is estimated will reach a total of over twenty million ounces. Germany's experience will probably be the same as that of Austria, namely that the public will hoard the new silver coins, and it is calculated that something like twenty-four million ounces of silver will have to be turned into coins before the point will be reached when the German public will stop hoarding. The great mass of working people in the Central European countries have not known for almost a decade what the feel of a silver coin is like, and whenever they get hold of something else than a dilapidated piece of paper—which is the only kind of money they have been accustomed to for these many years—they fall so much in love with it that they hold on to it until dire hunger makes them give it up.

It is believed that the silver producers of America have been willing to extend considerable credit to Germany for the purchase of this silver, as they figure it will be worth their while to encourage not only Germany, but all other European countries, to reintroduce silver "small change."

As the carrying out of such a program implies the use of many millions of ounces of silver, there is every prospect that the price of silver will remain high for well on to another year. Many of the lower grade silver mines in America are again showing signs of activity. The silver producers of America are also among the most active in the group which is urging America to take a hand in the reconstruction of Europe.

EXTRACTION OF GOLD FROM BASE METAL POSSIBLE

Not Philosopher's Stone, But Nearly, Declares German
Chemist

Berlin, Aug. 10.—Today all Germany is ringing with the news of an epoch-making discovery—a discovery which may bring the world a step nearer to the solution of the mystery of the atom.

It was the alchemists' dream that they could transmute the baser metals into gold.

If today's news be verified, it will be proved that the "philosopher's stone" was not entirely a phantasy of the Dark Ages, but the intuition of scientific genius.

GREAT NEWS, BUT—

A German chemist, Professor Miethe, of the Photo Chemical Laboratory at Charlottenburg Technical High School, today announces that he has succeeded in breaking up the mercury atom, which was hitherto believed to be an elementary substance, into other elements, one of which is gold.

Starting as this discovery is, the Professor warns us against attaching exaggerated economic hopes to it.

"It does not mean," he says, "that the Philosopher's Stone has been discovered or that henceforth mercury can be converted into gold as a commercial proposition."

By the new method the cost of obtaining one kilogramme (35 ounces) of gold from quicksilver works out at about one million pounds.

This high cost is due to the enormous quantities of electric energy required to treat the mercury, several cubic yards of quicksilver yielding only 1-30-000th of an ounce of gold.

CHANCE DISCOVERY

Like many other great discoveries, this was partly accidental. Professor Miethe knew that quicksilver and lead are elements which, in the table of atomic weights, follow immediately after gold. He knew, too, that if one could split off the helium atom from the mercury atom, the remainder would have an atomic weight that tallied with that of gold.

"For years," says Professor Miethe, "I have been investigating methods of altering the color of transparent minerals submitting them to the influence of the ultra-violet light."

FIRST SPECK OF GOLD

In these experiments I began, in June, 1923, to employ a new quicksilver lamp of melted rock crystal, invented by Jannetke.

"The electrodes of this lamp are in communication with the air, and when there is too high a load on them, the lamp gets used up very fast, and the inside gets a black coating."

FIRST SPECK OF GOLD

In analysing this residue Professor Miethe found his great discovery. He found in the amalgamated mass, beside numerous impurities, a certain exceedingly small quantity of gold.

The problem was to find out where this gold came from. Was it a substance that had got into the mercury from outside, or—wonder of wonders—had it been formed out of the quicksilver itself.

THE MAGIC CURRENT

Untiring experiments followed; the quicksilver itself was most carefully freed from all foreign matter; all chance of gold from without was eliminated.

By passing a current (170 volts) through the mercury lamp, the quicksilver was transformed, and after the electric current had been continued for a period varying from 20 to 200 hours the quicksilver showed traces—a grape-like incrustation of yellow metal.

This discovery is today stimulating the hope of those scientists who wish to prove that all the substances in the universe—all the 90-odd so-called elements—are variations of one primal element.

Dr. Alexander Scott, an expert of the Chemical Society.

Everybody Uses It

That's the great thing about Chamberlain's Cough Remedy: every user is a friend, and is glad to tell her neighbor about it. It is certainly great for coughs and colds, for croup and any kind of cough that hits either the young or the elderly people. Sold and recommended everywhere.

said to a Daily Chronicle representative that the report of gold from mercury should be accepted with great reserve.

"If it is indeed true, such a discovery would, of course, be regarded as a first-rate scientific event," he said. "But many such claims have been made. Large numbers of attempts have been made in this country to break up the mercury atom, and many people have claimed to have found gold, but the claims have not been substantiated."

"Research work of this nature is always going on, but I do not know of any successful attempt to break up the mercury atom into gold constituents."

Hankow Trade

The British Chamber of Commerce, Hankow, states in its weekly trade circular dated September 17:

Bar silver opened the week at 34.15/16 and fluctuating slightly closed at that rate. New York and London cross rate at 44 1/4, gradually firmed up closing at 44 1/4. T. T. opened on the 12th @ 3/4% inst. but rose to 3/5% at what rate it closed the week. 4 m/credits done at 3/6% early on remained round that rate business was done at the same rate at the close of the week. Chinese market rates: Shanghai Tael 100 nominal. Local currency 70/8. Native interest 17 percent.

Business reported last week was confined chiefly to wood oil, sesamum seed and tallow and fair quantities changed hands. The market for these commodities is very firm. China grass quiet. Cotton weak with values on the decline.

IMPORTS
Piece Goods and Yarn: Market unchanged. No demand and clearances practically nil.

BLACK TEA
Last week's demand for the common grades has continued and stock of all kinds has been reduced to some 70,000 H/c.

This figure is still large for the time of year, but owing to the fact that this stock has been well picked over and only inferior qualities left it would appear to be likely to take some time to clear the balance. Unless supplies on European markets become exceedingly short, it is doubtful if they can absorb such a quantity of tea of so poor a character.

Owing to the reduction of the supply of the best teas of each grade, purchases made during this week shown an appreciation in value of from Tls. 2—Tls. 3, while very little if anything can be bought under Tls. 16, which shows an actual advance of Tls. 1/2—1.

Shanghai Pahang Rubber Estate

The annual general meeting of the Shanghai Pahang Rubber Estate, Ltd., was held yesterday afternoon, when the chairman addressed the shareholders as follows:

Gentlemen:—The report and accounts having been in your hands for some time, I will, with your permission, follow the usual course and take them as read.

The planted area of the Estate remains at 754 acres, the same as the previous year. During the year 277 acres were brought into the tapping round, but while the whole of the planted area is shown in the report as "producing," several fields have not yet been opened up for tapping, as it was not necessary to tap over the whole area to obtain our allowance. The felling of the new block of 162 acres adjoining Inverawe Division was completed in December last and in order to comply with the conditions of the grant, this area will require to be planted up by March 15, 1925.

The cost of production was slightly higher than the previous year, principally due to the reduced output brought about by restriction measures and to the fact that the weeding of the whole Estate has this year been charged to revenue, whereas last year the weeding of the 1917-1918 plantings was charged to capital.

The report contains very full information regarding the crop statistics, and as regards the working of the Estate, there is very little for me to comment upon. The Estate is in an exceedingly well weeded condition, and this augurs well for a reduction in weeding costs which were high owing to the abnormal weather conditions. The position as regards disease is normal and the trees for the most part are healthy and free from disease and bark removals are ample and healthy. The labor position is easy and the health of the force throughout the year has been particularly good.

Prices throughout the year have had a downward tendency, but thanks to a forward sale of 2½ tons monthly during the first part of our financial year at a price of 6½ cents per pound, the profit for the year compares very favorably with that of the previous year.

The profit, after making the usual allowance for depreciation, amounts to Tls. 7,154.45, which, added to the amount of Tls. 4,459.18 brought forward from last year's accounts, leaves us with a total of Tls. 15,613.63 standing at credit of profit and loss account. With regard to the distribution of this amount, the Directors regret that owing to the uncertain conditions prevailing they are unable to recommend a dividend and feel sure that shareholders will agree that the present is no time to make any distribution of cash funds. If the present improvement is maintained, the Directors will give every consideration to the payment of a dividend at the first opportunity.

Forward sales of 3 tons monthly October-December at a price of 49 cents and 2 tons monthly January-December 1925 at a price of 50 cents per lb. f. o. b. have been made.

Mr. Birkmose, our manager, is away on a well-earned holiday and the Estate is in charge of Mr. Horswill and I would like to take this opportunity of expressing the Directors' appreciation of the good work done by both these gentlemen as well as those of Major G. Nevill Stevens, our Visiting Agent.

That is all I have to say, gentlemen. If any shareholder has any questions to ask, I shall be pleased to answer to the best of my ability.

There being no questions, the following resolutions were submitted to the meeting and passed:

1. That the report and accounts for the year ended June 30, 1924, as presented be accepted.
2. That the amount at credit of profit and loss account, viz. Tls. 15,613.63, be appropriated as follows: Write off buildings and furniture, Tls. 1,271.50; write off machinery, Tls. 331.95; write off waste and water, Tls. 543.42; write off bullocks and carts, Tls. 225.32; carry forward, Tls. 10,084.11. Total: Tls. 15,613.63.
3. That the appointment of Mr. A. W. Birkmose as a Director of the Company be confirmed.
4. That Mr. F. Sallou be re-elected a Director of the Company.
5. That Messrs. Lora, Bingham and Matthews be re-elected auditors to the Company.

The Soviet And The China War Situation

PERSONS familiar with old-style diplomatic practices usually become suspicious when Foreign Offices begin issuing denials regarding the existence of certain treaties or commitments. It is a good deal like the situation in the present Chinese war. When Kiangsu announces a big offensive to be launched, for example at the town of Liuho, most persons familiar with the methods of generals and war-propagandists, know that if an offensive is to take place at all, it probably will not be at Liuho but at some place far distant. The purpose naturally is to confuse the enemy, but it is questionable if it even has the effect intended, for generals on the other side usually have average intelligence and are able to discount the propaganda.

With these factors in mind, we cannot help but become suspicious of the repeated assertions of the Moscow propaganda bureau on the subject of possible aggression or intervention in China. Scarcely a day passes but that we are bombarded by messages from the Rosta News Agency, labeled Moscow, but probably written in Peking, that Soviet Russia is taking great pains to prevent the so-called imperialistic Powers from intervening in China either at the close or prior to the close of the present war.

The Powers, or at least the Four Powers—America, Britain, France and Japan—have let it be known pretty definitely that their policy is to be one of absolute neutrality in connection with the present China situation. Undoubtedly the Powers have a sufficient force available here now to intervene if they should so desire, but they do not so desire, and that's that!

Therefore, why does Moscow keep up the talk of intervention when there is no possibility of intervention on the part of the Powers which the Soviet keeps pointing its fingers at?

We are, therefore, led to wonder whether Moscow is not keeping up this propaganda as a sort of smoke-screen to hide something which the outside world has for a considerable time been suspecting. This something is that there may be considerably more to the Sino-Russian Agreement announced some few weeks ago than has appeared in the public prints. When the war between Kiangsu and Chekiang started a few weeks ago, it was freely announced by the Chihli propagandists that "Chang Tso-lin would not be able to move against Chihli for the reason that the Bolsheviks would not permit him to do so." And another statement freely made at the beginning of the war was that if "Chang Tso-lin moved south to the relief of Chekiang, the Soviet would invade Manchuria and seize the Chinese-Eastern Railway."

Of course, these statements may have been idle gossip, but it is out of just such sort of propaganda that observing people piece together facts and discover the real inside motives and reactions of Governments. Now there is still more evidence. Gen. Chang Tso-lin has now definitely announced that he has come to terms with the Russians on the subject of the Chinese-Eastern Railway. Just what the terms are, nothing has been said, but that Moscow has taken advantage of the present situation in order to force a bargain and bring General Chang into camp is now pretty clear.

Moscow may do a lot of talking about non-interference in Chinese affairs and especially along the line of accusations against the Western Powers and Japan of plans to interfere, but when the whole subject is analyzed, it has been the Bolsheviks themselves who have been interfering in Chinese affairs most steadily for many months. They have had their emissaries in Canton helping Dr. Sun Yat-sen and the radical elements in the Kuomintang against the Peking Government, and when Mr. Joffe, the first Soviet Commissioner to Peking, was in Shanghai he announced publicly that he had signed an agreement with Dr. Sun Yat-sen, the revolutionary leader. This was an act which no Western Power of standing would have countenanced under any conditions. But present-day Russia has followed these tactics right along with all of the enthusiasm that the old Russia of the Czar used to apply to this sort of diplomacy. Moscow worked with all of the revolutionary and discordant elements in China until she frightened the Peking Government into an agreement and recognition, and then she turned on the "independent" provinces of Manchuria and Chekiang and Canton and used the Peking treaty against them.

And all the time this was going on Moscow was putting out propaganda warning China against possible aggressions on the part of the Western Powers. As we stated in the foregoing, all of this Soviet propaganda is being put out for a certain purpose, and if we could search deeply enough we probably would find that it is the familiar smoke-screen put out to hide something which may be very distasteful to the Chinese people generally regardless of their political affiliations when they do find out just what it is.

LAYING UP

The thrifty man lays up money for his old age. The farmer lays up fodder for his winter feeding. The medical student lays up information for use in his future practice. The intelligent, by due exercise and diet, lays up health, and the wastrel lays up trouble and disease by his excesses.

All of us lay up something, willy-nilly.

It is a good idea to ask one's self, in considering any act we are about to perform, not only what will be the immediate pleasure in it, but what sort of product we are laying up for ourselves by it.

We are always coming into our inheritance from our past deeds. Masterlinck says, "There is one thing that can never turn into suffering, and that is the good we have done."

This day you may have to decide between doing a thing that will gain you a thousand dollars and a thing that will cost you ten. In making up your mind, it is well to take into consideration what happiness dividend the transaction is going to bring you ten years from now.

The world you live in is formed on the laying-up principle. Nature gains her ends as a child learns to walk and talk, by infinite repetitions. She does the same thing over and over. She is eternally learning how.

Think how many centuries she practised in fish-flappers, bird-wings, and animal fore-legs until she could make a human arm.

Let the scientist tell you of the infinite trials that preceded the formation of an eye, an ear, a human brain.

The efficiency of every age depends upon what was laid up for it by the ages gone before. This age of coal and petroleum rests upon the long cycles of the carboniferous era, when summer after summer giant trees grew and fell, and in the crucible of earth were changed to coal and oil!

Nature never forgets. She never drops a stitch. What she does now is a part of what she has in mind for ten thousand years from now. The plan of the oak is in the acorn.

"The books were opened," says the Apocalypse, describing the Day of Judgment, "and the dead were judged out of the things that were written in the books." This parable is but a picture of the scientist's declaration that our EVERY ACT LEAVES ITS RUT IN THE BRAIN, making us prone to repeat; what we feel today, we more readily feel tomorrow; every functioning of body or mind, in fact, having memory-making as a by-product. The whole process looks toward a future man.

Creation is cumulative. That is the meaning of evolution. The human race is cumulative. That we learn from reading history.

The individual life is cumulative. Every day is for future days. Every sensation and every act of will, everything I do, has a bearing upon the me that shall be ten years from this time—a thousand, a million years hence—who knows?

Hence, if anyone chooses to believe that, after this long getting-ready, Nature is going to throw me, body and soul, back into the scrap-heap, let him believe it.

Nature ought to have as much sense as I have. And I certainly would not go to all the pains Nature takes in preparing a human spirit only to fling my product at last into the ditch.

Where The Mystery Of Gravitation Lies

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

Will you please explain to your readers the so-called "law of gravity"—that invisible force which tends to draw all bodies toward the center of the earth? Is it due to the fact that old mother earth is whirling around at a rate of about one thousand miles an hour? Suppose the earth ceased to revolve, would attraction be the same? Again, what causes the earth to keep revolving, and do all the planets and heavenly bodies also revolve on their axes?—Reader, Detroit.

The "law" by which gravity acts, or operates, is easily explained, being a matter of observation; but the nature of gravity is another thing. That has never been accounted for to everybody's satisfaction. The theory of "attraction" covers it very nicely, until we inquire how it is possible that any attraction, or drawing force, can be exercised between bodies at a distance from one another and not connected by any physical, or material, link.

Some assume that the link consists of the so-called "ether" supposed to fill all space, so that everything is immersed in it, and thus connected by it. Then gravity—or in a broader sense, gravitation—is assumed to be the rubber. Stretch it and its ends tending to draw bodies together. What is meant by this may be suggested by a string of india rubber. Stretch it and its ends tend to draw together and the string shortens. So a chunk of india rubber, if stretched, or deformed in any way, tends to draw back again into its original shape.

If this does not seem to illustrate very clearly the case of a lifted stone tending to fall toward the earth, at least it starts the imagination toward an explanation by showing how the ether, by being very elastic, might produce similar effects upon bodies immersed in it.

But then comes Einstein, and by means of transcendental mathematics demonstrates (transcendently) that there is no ether, and that gravitation is not a force but an effect arising from an inherent "curvature" of space. But we are here in the dark, among the barbed wires, in the no-man's-land, between the trenches of the battlefield of scientific theories, and the wisest course for us, with our unhelped heads in danger, is to get out of the tangle and the gloom.

Let us give a few moments to the only "law" that Newton was able to find governing gravitation. He demonstrated, by the aid of the kind of mathematics that is based on common sense and common experience, that something causes all physical things and all particles of matter to draw together.

He proved that the heavier a body is the greater is its "attractive force" on gravitation. A body of a hundred pounds weight has a hundred times as much attractive force as has a one-pound body. The earth has about twelve septillion times as much attraction as a one-pound body. It has about 1,330,000 as much as has the sun.

But, and this is an infinitely important "but," the gravitational attraction of any body falls off very rapidly with increase of distance from the body and from the center of the body exercising the attraction. In fact it falls off in proportion to the square of the increase of distance. If the distance is doubled the force falls to one-quarter of what it was before; if the distance is tripled, the force diminishes to one-ninth, and so on. If this were not so the universe would all fall together and end in a common smash.

When we put the two branches of Newton's law of gravitation together—one prescribing that the attraction must vary directly as the weight (mass) of the bodies concerned; the other that it must vary inversely as the square of the distance between them—we get a foundation on which has been erected the whole marvellous structure of gravitational astronomy, the chef d'oeuvre of the human mind.

Your idea that the rotation of the earth on its axis produces its gravity is without foundation. The centrifugal force resulting from the rotation decreases, to a small extent, the effect of the gravitative attraction upon bodies on the earth's surface. But this does not affect its attraction upon bodies not sharing its rotation or constituting a part of it, such, for instance, as the moon.

As far as we know axial rotation is a common phenomenon among all heavenly bodies. All of the planets rotate on their axes and the sun rotates on its axis. What started the rotational motion we do not know.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

I saw her in the dining car when we were having supper: My berth was lower Number 9, and she had bought the upper;

She seemed to be distressed a bit, and, noticing her beauty, I offered an exchange of berth, a thing I deemed my duty.

She said that I was more than kind, and smiled upon me sweetly, And when she smoked her cigarette she did it very neatly;

She even let me pay her check, and long we sat together, Discussing many other things than sleeping cars and weather.

We talked about the movies and we jouched on prohibition; She told me she was going West to take a fine position, And when, at last, I closed my eyes, stretched in the berth above her, I fancied it would not be hard for me to learn to love her.

Sweet thoughts of her were in my mind when sleep on me descended, But morning came, and then I learned that my romance was ended; I heard, the porter's story, and no longer loved nor blessed her; She had complained, it seemed, because my snoring had distressed her.

Once Overs

BY J. J. MUNDY

Public officials are accustomed to the thought that they are in the eye of the public and are bound to be criticised by their constituents.

Few realise that the eyes of the younger generation are just as alert and wide awake to their transgressions if there be any, and the boy or the girl is not so easily impressed by an effort to "explain away" had impressions.

It happened that the street commissioners were leveling and filling in spots in a certain residential district and had put up partial barricades to prevent traffic on the streets just before closing.

Sonny asked his father what the red flag meant, and the father thought it a good opportunity to bring home a lesson on obedience to law.

Some of the boys had been playing without heed to the signs and thereby annoyed the authorities so the father very flatly expressed the thought that any one who did not heed such things were unworthy citizens.

"But Dad," said the small boy, naming a prominent neighbor who had run for office, "Mr. So-and-So drove through there just the same and the gravel came right out of the spots and stuck to his car and nobody stopped him, and you voted for him, didn't you?"

How are you going to teach a small boy to respect signs that their elders disregard?

When Is a Scarf a Shawl and When Is It a Scarf?

When is a shawl not a shawl, and when is it a scarf? This is a riddle that might puzzle many of us. The popular notion, apparently, is that a scarf remains a scarf so long as it remains longer and comparatively narrower. When it becomes square or nearly square it becomes a shawl.

But such a distinction does not always hold. It is a fact of history that when the shawl was a novelty in Europe, in 1786, it was six yards long and two yards wide. If such wraps appeared today they would undoubtedly be scarfs. Nowadays we hear of scarfs "of shawl-like appearance," and scarfs of the shape of shawls.

Many of the large shawl-scarfs show trimming only on one, two or three sides. Fringe often appears only on three sides, and sometimes a wide band of velvet appears on one side of a chiffon square.

Last year cashmere and other light-weight woolen shawls were occasionally worn as one of the accessories of some smartly dressed woman's sports attire. But for the most part shawls were regarded as exclusively suitable for evening wear. A deep violet cashmere shawl embroidered in woolen threads was used as a sort of auxiliary motor wrap by one well-dressed young woman, and few others followed suit. Now the gaily colored wool shawl is pretty sure to be no uncommon sight as an accessory of sport wear. Woolen fabrics of Czechoslovakian color and design are made into large fringed shawls of this ilk. The sketch shows a gaily striped woolen shawl that is worn with a sports frock with a black velvet tam or beret.

Gaily striped woolen shawl worn with sports frock and black velvet tam.

—who could even be left alone with a plate of fresh fudge on the table—will nibble fresh celery whenever he has a chance. Even very little children seem to relish its flavor once they get their teeth in it. Unfortunately, its fibroid nature makes it unsuitable for the very young child.

Parsnips, perhaps, are disliked as heartily as any other vegetable—with the possible exception of turnips. Yet interestingly enough, as our food canvases showed, there are some people who prefer parsnips to any other vegetable. Two persons out of a group of fourteen recently quizzed confessed to an intense fondness for parsnips, while another confessed to a fondness for any sort of vegetables "excepting parsnips." At least two others of the group admitted to a strong dislike of that particular vegetable. Wax beans seem to have more admirers than string beans. Beets are often given first place and so is eggplant. Tomatoes take first place as a salad constituent, but cooked tomatoes do not seem to be so well liked among Americans.

The Schoolgirl

At thirteen or fourteen years of age your daughter reaches a state of mental and physical transition. At school she is beginning to study subjects of relative difficulty, in which she must be examined. Her worries loom large and important in her maturing mind, will be magnified by any periodical physical depression.

Many mothers have helped their daughters through these years of great mental and physical activity by giving to them regularly Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will tone up the system, give them a new vitality, and energy to combat physical strain, nervousness, and listlessness.

"I am glad to say that I am one who takes your medicine and have found great relief from its use. I always suffered from indigestion and was advised by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so for one month and was surprised that all my pains vanished. You are welcome to use this letter to help others."

YOUR FAVORITE VEGETABLE

Green peas, asparagus and corn on the cob are invariably favorites among American vegetables. While they may pole an equal number of votes as prime favorites, peas would have to be given the place of honor, because now and then you will find someone who does not like asparagus, and even oftener one who scorns corn. But it is hard indeed to find anyone who actually dislikes green peas. Fresh green peas are pretty sure of finding acceptance on any bill of fare.

A distinguished epicure says regarding his own vegetable preference: "If I had the choice of a dozen vegetables at dinner, I would more often than any other choose celery au jus." That, of course, means celery stewed and served in the liquid in which it has been stewed. In canvassing for preferences you will seldom find celery placed at the head of the lists. Yet it is a fact that you may have observed yourself that children very often have a naturally a decided preference for celery. A certain child who can be trusted with almost any food from the Dawn of the World—

"—the aeons of forgotten Time
When man was not!"

BEFORE man came, Time was. Not Time as we reckon it today; no mere minutes, but ages, aeons. A century flung into that dim abyss was as a raindrop swallowed up by the sea.

Against that vague, shadowy dawn of the world loomed huge, fearsome monsters—dinosaur, pterodactyl, mastodon—It is a far, faint cry from the mists of the remote and unremembered past to the high-tension, split-second present.

Yet even there, in those strange, awesome animal bulks, was stirring the irresistible force of evolution—that eager upward urge of which was to emerge at last as man!

And the tireless flight of Father Time which spanned those colossal ages, is the same that measures our work and our lives today.

the winking of an eye. All shops of course have their windows covered at night with boards, but the tell-tale signs gave away the kind of shops, and when these soldier bandits saw a watch and clock shop, the board covering was torn off, the glass windows—usually plate glass—were smashed with their rifle butts and an entrance made. While some of soldiers guarded the street, others would enter the shop, break open the doors, smash open the show cases, and gather all the watches, gold and silver ornaments, etc., into bags, and depart, hunting for other stores. Nearly every watch and clock store in the city was looted, and there are many of them, several new ones having been opened this year. Shoe stores strangely furnished a very enticing place for raiding. Every shoe store on the principal business streets were likewise smashed open and completely ransacked. The soldiers did not take all the shoes, but the mob that gradually picked up courage to follow the troops, would rush in after the soldiers left and carry off everything that was left.

The doors of the Bank of China and the Bank of Communications were forced and group after group of soldiers entered and carried off what they could find. Many thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of new bank-notes of the Bank of Communications were taken, but fortunately their serial numbers had not been inserted and they had not been signed by the head of the bank. Several of the small street banks were attacked, but their plan of having a very small front on the street, with an unusually strong door, seemed to be their great protection. Some of their doors were hammered on with large stones swung on a rope tied to a beam high above the doors, but they failed to give way. The soldiers then turned their attention to doors more easily forced. HOLD-UPS ON STREETS streets. They were many times told to hand over their money or they would be shot. These demands were made with a cocked pistol thrust against their bodies. No one was thus shot, but everyone immediately handed over what he had when so ordered. Coppers and dimes were alike rejected—only bank notes and silver dollars accepted. Several soldiers went into the city temple about six o'clock and ordered the people there to hand over all the dollars and bank notes they had. This netted them a total of some six hundred dollars which they tied up in handkerchiefs and towels. All during the day soldiers could be seen walking through the streets carrying heavy bags of watches, silver which they had taken from the silver shops, and dollars. Women were also held up on the streets and made to show their hands, in order that the soldier might know whether or not they had rings or jewels. If they had any, such were roughly taken off them. Women who happened to be in the shops along the street, often had inexpensive ornaments taken off their hair, and clothing, and earrings from their ears.

Silk stores also proved to be another profitable source of revenue on the part of the looters. Several large stores were broken into, and all the silk removed. This was done by the belated robbers who didn't get into Huchow until the middle of the day or the afternoon. Most of the large front doors and windows of the silk stores are unusually strong and almost impossible for the ordinary bandit to force. In such cases, several soldiers guarded the streets while others climbed to the second and third floor balconies and there pounded their way in. Each soldier carried away several bolts of silk—as much as he could carry.

FLEE TO COMPOUNDS

Beginning early in the morning, women and children began fleeing into the mission compounds for safety. Last night about one thousand people stayed in the compounds of the Baptist mission near the East gate, while some five thousands stayed at the Methodist mission compounds near the North gate. Not one instance has been learned in which women have in the least way been mistreated by the soldiers, and only one person has been wounded as far as we can learn. He was a north river boatman who could not understand the language of one of the soldiers who ordered him to open a gate, so he was shot through the calf of the leg. The wound though painful is not considered serious. It seems that the soldiers had no thought whatever of injuring anyone, for they always fired into the air to scare the people, and after a few hours the people began to follow them everywhere while they were looting.

No stores or buildings near the yamens of either the military governor or the city magistrate, were looted, in deference, it is said, to the former courtesy of those two officials. Only in one case was a large private residence looted, and this seems to have been through a mistake, as the soldiers had determined not to bother the private property of the leading citizens. Although the foreigners were out on the streets numerous times during the day, not the least discourtesy was shown them by any of the soldiers—they were not noticed. No foreign property was in any way molested.

The sudden return of the troops from Szean and Changshing and the looting of the city, came as one of the greatest of surprises to your correspondent, for Friday morning he returned from a day on the front lines of the Szean sector. When the report was made upon my return that the soldiers were coming, and that the officers had already arrived, and that looting was feared, I could not believe it. For late Thursday evening about thirty li from Szean I passed a launch towing twenty-two large boat loads of soldiers, field guns and ammunition to Szean. The men at Szean had been holding the lines for two days with orders not to attempt to advance, but await reinforcement, upon the arrival of which they were to open a strenuous offensive. Also during the night as I returned, several steam launches packed with soldiers and munitions, were bound for Changshing or Szean to strengthen the lines I had not the least doubt.

SOLDIERS DRESSED

With the sudden and complete change of events as the last two days have brought about, a detailed account of the front lines until Thursday night would be out of place. But one or two points of interest can hardly be left untold. The Anhwei troops did not enter into battle in a straight soldier to soldier manner. Some three to five hundred of them dressed as farmers and came through the tall rice almost to Szean. Having arrived there their big guns from the rear began throwing shells over their heads into the Chekiang troops. The Chekiang soldiers rushed immediately into battle for they were taken by surprise, but not expecting to fight for some time to come. They rushed into the fields and began to take their places. Numerous farmers were to be seen in the rice fields, apparently cutting the rice. The Chekiang soldiers called to them to get out of the way and into their houses immediately as the fighting had already begun and they were going to open fire on the Anhwei troops. They began to move to the side a little, dropped suddenly and began firing on the Chekiang troops. Thus came the Anhwei men. They rushed back of course to their own lines as best they could, and the many farmers living in that large part of the country swept by the fire of both the Chekiang and the Anhwei troops could not get out of their houses by day or night. Both sides doubted any man appearing in a countryman's garb and opened fire without notice.

FUSED QUARTZ WILL BRING HEALING LIGHTS.

EDWARD R. BERRY, M.D.

A new method by which light rays may be actually "bent" around a corner has been devised by Edward R. Berry, assistant director of the Thompson Research Laboratory, at the West Lynn, Mass., laboratories of the General Electric Company. As a result marvelous improvement in the use of the violet ray treatment is expected, since the ray may now be directed down the throat, or through incisions in the human body. The substance through which light rays and heat may be passed is a piece of which Mr. Berry is shown holding. Since quartz has the lowest ratio of expansion, the quartz tuning fork is absolutely accurate.

The previous report that General Wang Ping and General Wang Pu opposing generals on that sector were using empty shells to carry on the warfare as a face-saver is wrong as the wounded being carried into the hospitals proved. Heavy fire was being carried on at regular and close intervals, and the booming of large guns was constantly rending the air. Until late at night on Thursday, the guns could be heard, and their flames seen on the darkened sky as our host slowly rowed its way towards Huchow. For two days now we have had no word from the outside. All wires have been cut and we are completely isolated. We have not been able to send messages to neighboring villages of the soldiers looting, and their plans to proceed to other places, neither have we been able before today to proceed to other places, neither have we been able before today to set word of the present trouble to our friends outside the city. Last night and today have been quiet with no soldiers or robbers in the city, and nothing but rumors and fears to disturb the minds of the panic stricken people.

Spanish Advance In Morocco Starts

(Reuter's Service)
Madrid, Sept. 24.—Official despatches from Morocco show that the Spanish advance with the object of relieving Shenshuan, where a Spanish garrison of 3,000 is invested, has begun. General Primo de Rivera has reorganised the Expeditionary Force of forty thousand men, which recently reinforced the Army of eighty thousand already in Morocco.

Aeroplanes are preceding the troops, distributing manifestos threatening that rebels will be severely punished and promising that loyal tribes will be rewarded.

Sir Robert Ho Tung Honored At London

(Reuter's Service)
London, Sept. 24.—Sir Robert Ho Tung was today presented with an address and a massive silver loving cup by the Hongkong section of the Wembley Exhibition in appreciation of his invaluable services to the Chinese exhibitors. Sir Robert and Lady Ho Tung will leave London on September 25 for China via the continent. This is earlier than was originally arranged and is partly owing to the political atmosphere in China due to the civil war. Their son, Mr. Edward Ho Tung, will not accompany his parents as he is still at Warsaw attending the World's Students Conference.

What's Changing Us?

What will History call this present age? It was the printing-press (wasn't it?), that changed our conditions of Life.

But the printing-press did its great work at a price. It definitely affected the eyesight of the race. This present era may well be called the Age of Eyestrain.

At first man's average range of vision was 40 feet and over. Then, to read the first big black letters it was occasionally pulled in to arm's length. Today small type taxes our eyes endlessly at an average range of only 14 inches.

But science has kept pace with this growth of pointing, finding measures for the relief of eyes. For what is more important to happiness and success than efficient eyesight? Fancied ability to see is not a test of vision. Eyestrain headache, nervousness, overtaxed eye-muscles, bloodshot eyes and other discomforts. With glasses you are protected—your eyes properly adjusted, nervousness relieved. A complete eye-examination by the O.I.C. is the one way to be safe.
